In their natural environment monkeys travel more than ten miles a day and run 35 miles per hour. But instead, Fuster imprisons them in small barren cages where they are tortured and then killed when Fuster is done with them.

UCLA Researcher Joaquin Fuster inserts electrodes into the brains of innocent monkeys in a foolish attempt to study human memory. He straps conscious monkeys into steel restraining device chairs, cuts a hole in their skull and inserts electrodes into their brains. After taking fraudulent readings from his instruments, and when finished utilizing these beautiful, sentient creatures, he murders each monkey and goes on to the next one.

Absolutely NOTHING, which helps humans, has ever come from his research; (even physicians have come out and admitted to this.) Joaquin has killed thousands of primates over the years and it has to stop now.

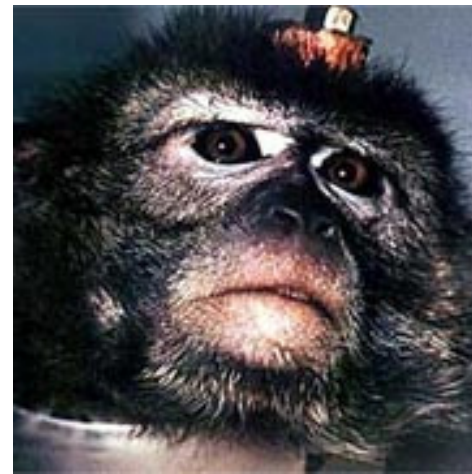

PRIMATES SHOULD NOT BE USED IN EXPERIMENTS!
